Pi Reminder is free to use, and it doesn't have any in-app purchases. It's definitely a simple and straightforward extension that you can use. My only gripe with the app, is that it gets in your way. I really like to know if I'm meeting up with someone or not, especially if I'm out and about. Sometimes people just don't want to give their real number or email address, and if you text them that you're on your way or something, you really can't text them back without being labeled as a creepy person. The app didn't seem to be able to detect the fact that I was on my way. I like this app, I know it's not very original, but it does its job. I use it to keep track of my dates, events, and other things to do for the week, and it makes sure to remind me about those things at a specific time. It's the perfect app for busy people, just like me. If you're a person that can't stay organized, I'm pretty sure you'll find this app useful. It's just like a new year's resolution, but for your day-to-day life. A little disappointed that I have to pay to use this app. I wasn't expecting this kind of price tag, but it's okay. I think it's a small price to pay for a good experience. What is Pi Reminder?
