The applicationQ: LaTeX: math mode in bib entry I'm having a nasty issue with \@ifnextchar and the use of a bib entry. I have a bib entry with various entries with special characters in them and I want to enter them "as math mode" in LaTeX. The entries are going in the bib file and then I export it to a.bbl file. I also have a.log file in which I monitor the content of the bib file. Here's an example of the entry: ... and since \one is a unicode character, LaTeX (2.09) must convert it to a "latin" character, \e. Why is \@ifnextchar not testing the characters that I inserted? Here's the entire sample of the bib entry, the last one: @article{bib:1, Author={Faure, H.}, Journal={Journal of Vulgar Laughter}, Title={Editorial: The Author is Perfect}, Year={1987-00}, Number={1}, Pages={3-10} } And here's my \@ifnextchar testing: \expandafter\if\cscname matchmath\endcscname\relax\relax \expandafter\string\bib@inc@authors\relax \expandafter\string\bib@inc@title@
